Remarks: Tex:

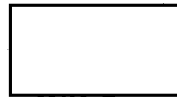

The attached is in response to Mr. Brownman's question the other morning about how much we spend on Xerox and carbon paper. As you can see, the cost has been increasing over the last 3 years for Xerox paper and it's been decreasing on other types of reproduction paper such as thermofax.

There is no real relationship, however, between what we spend on "reproduction paper" and the fairly minimal amount of money that was spent on carbon paper of both the standard and the letterex type. The Depot stock referred to in the attachment is basically for supporting the overseas installations and the open stock is that which LSD maintains in
